

PEER SOCIAL GROUP THERAPY

What is a peer social group?

It is a group of kids of similar ages interacting under the direction of a speech–language pathologist for the purpose of developing social language skills & concepts of peer relations. We have social groups for kids of different ages & although the number of kids in a group varies, we limit our groups to 4 kids to maximize the benefits.

Who would benefit from participating in our social groups?

Our social groups are designed for kids having difficulties communicating & playing with their peers. Although such difficulties are commonly associated with Autism or Asperger’s Syndrome, social groups can significantly improve the social skills of kids without such diagnoses.

What will kids do in social groups?

Some fun activities include role-playing in hypothetical social situations, playing games to stimulate social thinking & taking trips to places such as parks to meet other kids & apply their skills in real situations.

What are the benefits of peer social groups?

Kids learn to make conversations, listen, understand different intonations, read body language such as facial expressions & gestures, focus & stay on topic, share, & more. The goal is to teach kids to play and socialize with their peers and make friends.
